GTM Launch Plan Builder

Turn the feature you scoped in M4 and validated in M5 into a complete go-to-market plan. Set your goal and audience, size the launch, pick your channels, plan enablement and budget, set a timeline, and define success metrics, and watch your plan assemble live. Copy it as Markdown when you're done; everything autosaves to this browser.

Step 0 · Anchor — Pick your project path

Launch the same feature you carried through M4 and M5 so your plan builds on real prior work.

- StreamLine — B2C · consumer audio
- RouteLogic — B2B · logistics
- My own product — real feature

Feature you're launching M4 PRD

The one feature you built and tested, not a list

Step 1 · Goal & Audience — Set your goal, then your audience

The goal determines the audience, not the other way around. Pick one primary goal.

- Awareness — make the market aware
- Engagement — deepen adoption
- Conversion — move a business metric

Why this goal? , what makes it right for this feature right now

e.g. net-new feature entering a crowded space, the priority is establishing how it's perceived.

Target audience M2 PERSONA

The specific segment your goal implies. Primary + (optional) secondary. Be precise, a goal without a defined audience is wishful thinking.

Step 2 · Launch Tier — Size your launch

T-shirt sizing based on reach, revenue impact, and the risk of silence. Over-investing in a small release is as costly as under-investing in a big one.

- S — Minimal · no outreach
- M — Targeted · focused comms
- L — Multi-channel
- XL — Full GTM · press, events

Justification , reach + revenue impact + what silence would risk e.g. net-new product entering a crowded market without an established base, a targeted multi-channel approach is essential to cut through.

Step 3 · Channels — Pick your top three channels

Match each channel to where your audience actually is. Tag the type, owned, earned, or paid.

Channel 1 Owned · Earned · Paid

e.g. Email + in-app onboarding, activates users who already downloaded the app

Channel 2 Owned · Earned · Paid

e.g. Micro-influencer seeding, the angle is inherently shareable

Channel 3 Owned · Earned · Paid

e.g. Paid social on Instagram/TikTok, short-form video that shows the experience

Enablement & assets , what Sales / CS / Support need + assets to build e.g. Launch email, in-app onboarding sequence, one-pager for partners, short-form demo video, updated app store copy. Brief Support on the product before launch.

Step 4 · Ownership & Timeline — Make it executable

A good strategy with no one accountable is the most common GTM failure. Name owners (not teams) and sequence the work.

Ownership & budget , named owner per activity + anything that costs extra / any asset gap e.g. PM owns the plan + post-launch metrics. Marketing owns paid social + email (budget needed). Design owns demo video. Eng owns app-store submission. Support briefed, no extra budget.

Timeline , Phase 1 beta → Phase 2 launch moment → Phase 3 post-launch e.g. Week 1: influencer seeding + early-access outreach. Week 2: app-store submission + onboarding live. Week 3: launch day, paid social + email. Week 4+: monitor, collect feedback, decide on iteration.

Step 5 · Success Metrics — Define how you'll know it worked

Match metrics to your goal, an awareness campaign judged on conversion always misreads the result.

Success metrics , 2 to 3 metrics that match your goal

e.g. New user signups in first 30 days, time to first key action, feature adoption rate in week one.

Bad signal to watch for e.g. high reach, zero signups = message-market mismatch

Most likely post-launch decision

double-down · iterate · pivot · deprioritize, and the trigger
